Abstract title: Effective climate-related disclosures and the drive towards decarbonization

Since the release of the Task Force on Climate-related Financial Disclosures' (TCFD) recommendations last year, intensive discussions have been held in many fora globally to ascertain its implications. The TCFD recommendations were developed primarily to support informed investment decisions and improve understanding of climate-related risks and opportunities. Over the past year, leading institutional investors have implemented practices to align their investment strategies with the recommendations. Investees are therefore encouraged to incorporate strategic thinking in disclosing not only their climate-related risk factors but opportunities, which may include the prospect of decarbonizing their value-chain or minimizing emissions through their product lifecycle.
