

Session Title: SDGs for business activity

Name: Jim Falk

Position: Professorial Fellow, Melbourne Sustainable Society Institute, The University of Melbourne

Achieving the SDGs will demand unprecedented levels of innovation. Nowhere is this clearer than in relation to climate change. But whilst the private sector has an enormous role to play in achieving this it cannot do so by itself. The playing field needs to be shaped so that businesses can meet SDGs in the context of their investors' goals. Doing that requires the collective efforts of the private sector, government and civil society. This presentation focuses on the ways these three sectors can catalyse, facilitate and encourage the necessary innovation.