Name: Laurence Tubiana

Position: CEO, European Climate Foundation;

Chair of the Board of Governors, French Development Agency (AFD);

“The objective of achieving net zero emissions and carbon neutrality by 2050 or very soon after is the target which all states and non-state actors need to get behind to ensure we collectively avoid the worst impacts of climate change.

Many sectors are already undergoing profound changes (e.g. shipping giant Maersk committing to achieving carbon neutrality by 2050). Forming progressive alliances between states and non-state actors alike, these frontrunners should work together to leverage each other’s financial and technical potential and develop concrete plans that demonstrate how decarbonisation can be delivered in practice; and bring credibility to climate action.”
